

Inservices On Demand MODES OF TRANSMISSION

NAME: _____ FACILITY: _____ DATE: _____

Question 1:

In order to stop our germs from spreading to others, we should cough:

- Into our sleeve, and then perform hand hygiene
- Over our shoulder, and then perform hand hygiene
- Into the air, and then perform hand hygiene
- Into our hands, and then perform hand hygiene

Question 2:

Negative pressure air flow, used for clients on airborne precautions, causes the air from the client's room to flow from the room to the hallway.

- True
- False

Question 3:

Hand hygiene is the single most important way to prevent the spread of germs in the healthcare setting.

- True
- False

Question 4:

The most common mode of transmission seen in healthcare is:

- Vehicleborne transmission
- Airborne transmission
- Parenteral transmission
- Contact transmission

Question 5:

Match the germ with its primary mode of transmission:

MRSA	Airborne & Contact Transmission
Tuberculosis	Airborne Transmission
Chickenpox	Contact Transmission
The Common Cold	Droplet Transmission
Malaria	Sexual Transmission
Gonorrhea	Vectorborne Transmission

Question 6:

The following are examples of reservoirs (a place where a germ can live and multiply):

- Medical equipment
- Fruits and vegetables
- Humans
- All of the above

Question 7:

Appropriate types of eye protection include (check all that apply):

- Face shield with eye glasses
- Goggles
- Face shield
- Mask with attached face shield
- Eye glasses

Question 8:

Tuberculosis, measles, and West Nile virus can all be transmitted by the airborne route.

- True
- False

Question 9:

Personal Protective Equipment required for Droplet Precautions includes:

- N95 mask and eye protection
- Procedure mask and eye protection
- Gloves and gown
- N95 mask only

Question 10:

Using gloves properly means that we should always remember to:

- Remove our gloves when we reach the dirty utility room
- Perform hand hygiene each time we remove our gloves
- Wash our gloves after each use with a client
- Double glove to protect ourselves from possible holes in the gloves